Integrating ORAL Health in Health Care Curricula and Practice

Objectives: Participants will be able to
- Describe what constitutes a health care home.
- Understand the strategies to advocate for the critical role of oral health in overall health.
- Understand oral health's value proposition in a changing health care environment, including finance and care delivery.
- Recognize the essential role of education in preparing dental professionals to deliver the value proposition.
- Develop action plans for leading dental education to develop curricula to prepare graduates to practice in the new health care environment.

Abstract: The 2016 ADEA Signature Series Program on Integrating ORAL Health in Health Care Curricula and Practice will engage participants in understanding the concept of health care home and how oral health should be an integral component. Our speakers will present what leaders in dentistry and dental education should be doing to ensure oral health is integrated into the new health care delivery models. A discussion with all presenters will complete the program.

ADEA Leadership Institute Alumni Association

The ADEA Leadership Institute Alumni Association (ADEA LIAA) is comprised of graduates of the Institute, beginning with its first graduating class in the year 2000. The purpose of the ADEA LIAA is to further the leadership and personal development of alumni of the ADEA Leadership Institute by activities such as:

1. Developing and conducting regular leadership and personal development programs for alumni;
2. Raising funds through donations to help support these programs, scholarships, and other leadership development activities;
3. Promoting communication within the group of alumni Fellows;
4. Encouraging participation in the Leadership Institute through promotion of the Institute at the alumni Fellows' home institutions; and
5. Serving as a resource to ADEA on any and all matters concerning dental education.

Any graduate of the ADEA Leadership Institute is eligible to become an active member.

Membership Benefits

Membership in the ADEA Leadership Institute Alumni Association provides valuable benefits such as:
