Dear Speaker Ryan, Minority Leader Pelosi, Majority Leader McCarthy, Minority Whip Hoyer, Chairwoman Foxx, and Ranking Member Scott:

As President of the Council for Opportunity in Education, I, along with more than 400 undersigned institutions and associations that host and support the Federal TRIO Programs, write to share our concerns regarding certain provisions within the Promoting Real Opportunity, Success, and Prosperity through Education Reform (PROSPER) Act. We believe that, if enacted, these proposals would have harmful consequences that would vastly diminish the ability of these institutions to provide the academic, financial, and cultural supports necessary to ensure the success of low-income, first-generation students at institutions of higher education and in the surrounding communities.

A chief issue of concern rests in two provisions of the PROSPER Act that, if exercised to their fullest extent, would all but eliminate any opportunity for institutions to offer TRIO services. Specifically, the legislation requires the Secretary of Education to reserve a portion of the TRIO appropriation for entities that have never received TRIO grant funds in the past. Similarly, another provision within the bill mandates that the Secretary reserve a portion of the TRIO appropriation to fund a newly created competitive grant program known as IMPACT Grants.

We greatly understand and appreciate the Committee's interest in expanding the universe of institutions that host TRIO programs. We also share the Committee's commitment to promoting evidence-based models for college access and success. Yet, in attempting to achieve these goals, the PROSPER Act wrests authority from the Congress and forces legislators to yield completely to the will of the Secretary of Education. Given the austere fiscal environment of the last several years, it is certainly plausible that an Administration would take advantage of such broad authority to direct funds away from traditional TRIO grants in order to fund new institutions and this new initiative. Therefore, we respectfully request that your Committee reconsider these provisions within the legislation.

Another concern within the PROSPER Act is the addition of language that would limit the eligibility of entities that host programs similar to TRIO. Specifically, the legislation allows the Secretary to “limit an entity’s eligibility to receive [TRIO] funds ... because such entity sponsors a program similar to the program to be assisted under this division, regardless of the funding source of such program [unless]...the program is the serving a different population or a different campus.” By disadvantaging institutions that host other college access and success programs for low-income and/or first-generation students, this language actually contradicts the notion of “skin-in-the-game.” For, it penalizes institutions that invest their own resources into promoting successful outcomes for students who stand in need. Typically, such investments serve as a supplement to the funding provided by the TRIO programs, which, in turn, serve as models for student support on campus and in the local community. Also, this language particularly prejudices applicants from California, New Jersey, New York, and other states that fund their own Educational Opportunity Programs (EOPs) to support low-income students at state institutions.

A third troubling provision within the PROSPER Act is language that requires applicants to secure a 20 percent match for proposed grant awards. Despite perceptions to the contrary, many institutions of higher education are under-resourced and must continuously fight to fully meet the needs of their students, faculty, and overall infrastructure. This is particularly true of institutions that enroll a high number of low-income, first-generation students—that is, the very students that TRIO programs are designed to support. The same is true for non-profit agencies that focus on providing high-impact services in communities where youth and adults stand in the greatest need of support. It is for this reason that such institutions apply for TRIO grants. While matching funds need not come from the institutions themselves, the creation of this requirement would impose a severe burden on entities located in areas where few partners for such a match exist. This is particularly true of institutions in rural, more isolated parts of the country. It is also important to note that this provision fails to distinguish between institutional efforts to serve students who are enrolled undergraduates and those being served in the broader community through TRIO’s pre-college outreach programs serving youth, out-of-work adults, and military veterans.

Finally, we must also note with concern that the PROSPER Act only authorizes TRIO at a $900 million funding level for FY 2019 and the five succeeding fiscal years. Yet, this sum is $110 million less than the amount approved by Congress in the final omnibus appropriations package for FY 2018. Together with the aforementioned language requiring funds to be reserved for new applicants and the IMPACT Grants initiative, this proposed authorization level can only be interpreted as an intention to reduce the amount of funding available for students currently being served by TRIO programs.

We very much hope that you will consider these concerns as you and your colleagues continue the process of reauthorizing the Higher Education Act. We look forward to working with you on these matters and ultimately working to ensure that equal educational opportunity remains accessible for our nation's low-income, first-generation students for years to come.

Sincerely,

Maureen Hoyler
President
