Marcelo Gleiser, Ph.D., M.Sc.
Dr. Gleiser is the Appleton Professor of Natural Philosophy and Professor of Physics and Astronomy at Dartmouth College. He also directs the new Institute for Cross-Disciplinary Engagement at Dartmouth. He obtained his Ph.D. from King’s College London in 1986 and held postdoctoral fellowships at the Kavli Institute for Theoretical Physics in Santa Barbara and at Fermilab. Dr. Gleiser is the recipient of a Presidential Faculty Fellows Award from the White House, and is a Fellow and General Councilor of the American Physical Society. Author of over 100 peer-reviewed articles, his research focuses on cosmology, field theory, complexity and the origins of life. His research has been funded by the National Science Foundation (NSF), the National Institute of Energy, and the John Templeton Foundation. Dr. Gleiser plays an active role as a public intellectual dedicated to the public understanding of science. He is the author of four books in English, most recently, The Island of Knowledge: The Limits of Knowledge and the Search for Meaning (Basic Books, 2014). His cross-disciplinary books explore science’s historical and philosophical roots, and how its evolving narrative impacts our culture and worldview. His previous book, A Tear at the Edge of Creation (Free Press, 2010), was published in 12 languages. He participates frequently in TV documentaries and radio programs in the United States and abroad, and is the co-founder of the science and culture blog 13.7, hosted by National Public Radio in the United States.

Rob Jenkins, M.A.
Best known for his popular “Two-Year Track” column in The Chronicle of Higher Education, Prof. Jenkins has earned a national reputation as an advocate for community colleges and as an authority on two-year college issues. During his nearly 30-year career—all spent at two-year schools—he has served as a part-time faculty member, a full-time faculty member, a department chair, an academic dean and a program director. He is currently Associate Professor of English at Georgia Perimeter College, a large, multi-campus, urban/suburban community college in Atlanta. Prof. Jenkins holds an M.A. in writing from the University of Tennessee. His stories, essays and poems have appeared in a number of outlets, including The Clearing House, Southern Poetry Review, The Atlanta Journal-Constitution and The Gwinnett Daily Post. In recent years he has also come to be in some demand as a speaker, addressing faculty, staff and student groups on a variety of two-year and four-year college campuses around the country.

N. Karl Haden, Ph.D.
Dr. Haden is the founder and President of AAL. Since its founding in 2005, AAL has worked with over 100 higher education institutions and associations through faculty development programs and consulting services. Dr. Haden’s consultation and faculty development activities have included clients from dentistry, pharmacy, veterinary medicine, allied health and medicine.
